

EMPLOYEES – TAX CREDIT MAY PERMIT YOU TO CLAIM EXEMPTION FROM WISCONSIN WITHHOLDING TAX

INCOME TAX CREDIT AVAILABLE

Wisconsin law provides an income tax credit called the Working Families Tax Credit for certain lower-income individuals. The credit may be claimed on an individual's 2011 Wisconsin income tax return.

EXEMPTION FROM WITHHOLDING

As a result of the Working Families Tax Credit, some employees will be permitted to claim exemption from having Wisconsin income tax withheld from the wages they receive during 2011.

DO YOU QUALIFY?

To determine if you can claim exemption from having Wisconsin income tax withheld from wages you receive during 2011 because of the Working Families Tax Credit, answer the following questions:

- 1. Will you be a legal resident of Wisconsin for the entire year 2011?
2. Can you be claimed as a dependent on someone else's 2011 Wisconsin income tax return (for example, by your parents)?
3. Worksheet. Must be completed to determine if you may claim exemption from Wisconsin withholding tax (keep this worksheet for your records).

Worksheet table with 5 rows for income reporting and a footnote: * Examples of nonwage taxable income include interest and dividend income, self-employment income, alimony, and unemployment compensation.

- 4. (a). If you are unmarried, is line 5 of the Worksheet more than $10,000?
(b). If you are married, is line 5 of the Worksheet more than $19,000?

NEED ASSISTANCE?

If you have questions about the Working Families Tax Credit, or need assistance in completing the worksheet on page 1, contact any Department of Revenue office. You may also call Madison at (608) 266-2776. If you prefer, you may write to:

CAUTION

If you claim exemption from the withholding of Wisconsin income tax from your wages and subsequent changes in your income or marital status will result in your not being eligible for the Working Families Tax Credit, you must revoke the exemption. To revoke the exemption, you must notify your employer to resume withholding Wisconsin income tax from your wages. Use Wisconsin Form WT-4A to determine the amount your employer should withhold.

Detach here and give completed certificate to your employer, if you qualify.
